

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT....Tracey Murray

Tracey is a Health & Safety Representative who has worked in the health & safety field for 5-years. She is passionate about her role in this field and a couple of her strongest assets are communication and working closely with people in training and in preventing near misses and on the job injuries.

Tracey joined the health and safety profession by “accident”. She was asked to sit in on a regional health and safety meeting at the company for which she was employed, and became enamored with what was going on in the health and safety field.

Tracey continually strives to improve, and attends various educational trainings and seminars. Currently, she is working on her degree of Associates of Science in Health and Safety at Columbia Southern University in Alabama, and has earned an Associates Degree with Distinction in Liberal Studies.

Tracey is currently unemployed and is looking for future employment in the health and safety field.
